BOLIN WINS DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION FOR MAYOR

C., D. & M. REACHES AGREEMENT WITH CITIES ON TRACKS

Abandonment of Line Is Seen Near as Result of Action.

TO REMOVE RAILS

Marion and Bucyrus Latest To Accept Offer of Company.

Interurban service of the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Co. between Columbus and Bucyrus, through Marion, probably will be discontinued within two weeks, receivers for the company said today following agreement last night with Marion and Bucyrus city councils on disposition of the company's tracks, poles and wires within the limits of the two cities.

Developments in the last two days have removed the two principal obstacles to abandonment, the receivers, M. J. O'Connell and M. L. Sindeband, said. Agreements now have been reached, they said, with the cities along the route, Marion, Bucyrus, Prospect and Delaware, on disposition of tracks, poles and wires, and the required signatures of two-thirds of the company's bondholders have been obtained.

Bondholders Consent

The receivers said that yesterday they obtained consent of a group of bondholders representing 53 per cent of the bonds, which brought the procured signatures to considerably more than the required two-thirds.

Thursday, the receivers said, they will ask the federal court at Toledo for permission to make application to the state utilities commission for authority to abandon service within 10 days.

The agreement accepted by council last night provides for payment of $5,000 to reimburse the city for disposing of the tracks. It also provides that the company is to remove its wires and poles in the city.

Removal work will not start, the agreement provides, until the company is authorized to abandon its service. It is further provided that the tracks will become the property of the city and the poles and wires will remain in the company's possession.

Payment of the $5,000 disposition fee to the city will be made in five installments of $1,000 each, the ordinance provides. The first payment is to be made when the Inpenetrable mystery surrounds the murder of Henry F. Sanborn, (above) 44-year-old railroad executive, whose body was found Saturday in a hastily scooped grave near Bayside, Long Island. Sanborn had been shot twice in the heart and had been dead about two weeks when found. He disappeared from his residence in New York three weeks ago after drawing $2,000 from the bank. Police questioned his fiancee, Magnhilde Almskaar, but she could shed no light on the puzzle. (Photo by International News).

DEATH PUZZLE

MISHAP KILLS BALBO FLIER

Armada Loses Second Man in Takeoff from Azores for Portugal.

REST OF FLEET GOES ON

Other Ships Land Safely in Lisbon After Seven-Hour Flight.

By The Associated Press

LISBON, Portugal, Aug. 9—General Italo Balbo's air armada, minus one ship which overturned at the take-off, killing one man and injuring three others, completed another leg of the journey home to Italy today by flying from the Azores to Lisbon.

The seaplanes arrived here in three groups. The last, a formation of three which remained behind to care for the three men injured in the accident in the Azores, flew over Black Horse square just as General Balbo, the first to arrive, was reviewing his guard of honor.

Rest Land Safely

The vanguard of the armada began to alight on the Tagus at 9:30 a. m. (Marion time) and one hour, 15 minutes later, all 23 planes were at their mooring places.

The armada required about seven hours to cover the 1,200 miles from the Azores to Lisbon, traveling at an average speed of better than 170 miles-an-hour.

Lt. Squaglia and three other of the fliers were hurt when their plane overturned during the take-off from Horta, Azores.

Four Aboard Plane

The fliers, Capt. Ranieri, the pilot in command, Lieut. Squaglia, Sergeant Chemaschi, mechanic, and Sergeant Boveri, radio operator, were immediately taken to a hospital where Lt. Squaglia died.

Motor trouble caused the giant machine to turn over as it was leaving. It was the second accident of the long trip, one flier having been killed in a mishap at Amsterdam on the outward trip.

The ill-fated ship was called the I-Rani. It was the 21st of the fleet of 24, and was marked with three green stars. The plane was reported as apparently not seriously damaged, although an examination was made difficult because its engines were submerged with the floats uppermost.

MOST OF MINERS GO BACK TO THEIR JOBS

Some New Grievances Crop Out, However, and Appeal Is Made to NRA.

By The Associated Press

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 9—While most of southwestern Pennsylvania's striking coal miners lighted their lamps today and filed back to the pits, fresh grievances cropped out in the H. C. Frick Coke company mine at Grindstone causing a direct appeal to the NRA in Washington.

Two hundred miners at Colonial No. 4, scene of violence last week hurriedly dispatched a message to Edward F. McGrady, NRA mediator, claiming mine officials refused to recognize their checkweightman and their miners' committee.

After the men had stood about the mine mouth for several hours and no reply had come from McGrady, special deputies ordered them to either go to work or get off company property.

The miners retired without protest to a natural amphitheatre nearby where they hold meetings. They plan a session this afternoon to consider future action.

Jolson's Poke at Winchell Brings Suit for $500,000

Columnist Seeks Damages for Punches Swung by Comedian at Recent Hollywood Fight Show.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 9—The pass Al Jolson made at Walter Winchell two weeks ago in Hollywood has been passed right back to him in the form of a $500,000 suit for damages.

Winchell, Broadway gossip columnist, said today that the singing comedian was served with a formal notice of the suit last Thursday night. When or where the suit will be heard, Winchell doesn't know. "That's all up to my attorneys," he said.

Thousands of eyes turned from the paid pugilists at an outdoor fight in Hollywood, on the night of July 21, when the actor and the columnist mixed at the ringside. What most everyone saw was a group of police, ushers and friends milling in the seats. Out of the melee emerged Winchell, freely admitting he had been hit, and Jolson, freely admitting he had done the hitting.

Retaliation Punch

The actor said he punched Winchell in retaliation for writing a movie scenario which he had heard reflected upon his actress wife, Ruby Keeler, and himself.

Food Dealers Agree on Operating Hours Here

Vote Unanimously on Schedule; Marion Dairymen Announce Conformance to NRA.

Marion retail food dealers and dairymen today announced plans in conformance with the NRA program while news reports from the district told of forward steps in Bucyrus and Kenton.

Agreement on opening and closing hours for grocery stores, fruit, meat and vegetable dealers was reached last night at a meeting of 100 retail food merchants in the Y. M. C. A. The stores will operate from 7:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. on week days and from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. on Saturdays.

Agreement Unanimous

The Saturday night closing hour had been a bone of contention for more than a week, with some merchants wanting to close at 7 p. m. and others at 9 p. m. Last night's session, however, resulted in an unanimous agreement of both independent and chain-operated stores on the new schedule. It went into effect today.

Marion dairy operators today announced that all dairies in the city are operating practically under the NRA blanket code" and will be ready to display NRA emblems and insignia Sunday morning. Until a code is drawn up for this industry, the dairies will operate on a 48-hour week for labor, it was announced.

An increase in employment is expected, dairymen said, as a result of the new hours. No change in the hours of milk deliveries are contemplated.

Pay Boost in Bucyrus

In Bucyrus, more than 60 employes of the W. A. Riddell Co., one of the city's largest plants, are to receive wage increases, H. F. Holbrook, receiver, announced. Kenton merchants are moving to sign the NRA blanket code, following advice to that effect from James H. Allen Jr., recently selected chairman of the Kenton NRA governing committee.

63-Hour Schedule

The new schedule for food and produce dealers in Marion provides 64 hours of store operation a week, in line with the NRA policy that the stores must be kept open at least 63 hours a week. The merchants also are to follow a code of 48 work hours a week, with $14 a week as minimum pay.

Listing of employers' names at the Marion postoffice remained at a standstill today, as supplies of compliance certificates were awaited.

WHITE SEEKS FACTS ABOUT MAXIM CASE

Orders Investigation Regarding Fugitive Returned to Reformatory.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 9—Governor White today ordered the state parole board to make a thorough investigation of the case of Paul Maxim, returned to the Ohio reformatory from Chicago last night after six years of liberty.

Maxim, who escaped from the prison in 1927 when a youth of 19, was arrested on a tip furnished by Youngstown police.

He was being put through the usual routine for new and returned escaped prisoners at the reformatory today and Superintendent T. C. Jenkins refused to allow him to be interviewed.

Governor White said he ordered the investigation on his own initiative.

"Although I understand some representation will be made, I have not been officially advised. If all the newspapers have said about this boy's case are true, an immediate investigation should be made to determine whether he should not be immediately restored to society."

Maxim was imprisoned in 1927 after being convicted of stealing a typewriter. He escaped from the Sandusky honor camp and "made good" under the name of J. Paul Faraday.

He was arrested Saturday an information from a Youngstown policeman and returned here yesterday. He must serve a year before becoming eligible for parole unless Governor White pardons him. Officials of the paint company which employed him have announced they will seek a pardon.

FIGHTS CENTER ABOUT MAYORS

Majority of Ohio City Heads Are Voted Renomination by Parties.

BUCYRUS MAYOR LOSES

Hartmann Renominated at Galion; Former Senator Rohe on Tiffin Ticket.

Some mayors in the district near Marion and throughout the state were renominated at yesterday's primary, while others lost.

Mayor Arthur T. Schuler of Bucyrus, who was seeking his seventh nomination for mayor on the Democratic ticket, was defeated almost two to one by George M. Birk. Birk will be opposed by Robert W. Lamb, Republican, whose candidacy was uncontested.

In one of the biggest votes in the history of Galion, Dr. H. H. Hartmann again was nominated as the Democratic candidate for mayor. Dr. Hartmann now is completing his eighteenth year as mayor. He will be opposed by W. M. King, Republican.

George M. Lingrel, Republican incumbent, and Willis C. Bopp, Democrat, are the candidates for mayor at Kenton. They were not opposed at the primary.

Some In, Some Out

With a few notable exceptions, Ohio mayors succeeded in winning renomination from their parties. In some places, however, the tendency of last November's election to dismiss the "ins" was apparent—and the voters refused to rename them, the Associated Press reported.

More or less typical was the manner in which Massillon Republicans turned down "Gen." Jacob S. Coxey's request for another nomination. Whereas two years ago the veteran crusader for the unemployed was nominated and eleced by unprecedented majorities, he ran no better than third in the primary.

The man who consistently has opposed Coxey's policies, Clarence W. Angerman, president of city council, won the Republican nomination with 1,477 votes. C. Herbert Whitman was second with 1,219 and Coxey got a mere 647. William Linbach won the Democratic nomination without opposition.

Tiffin Democrats gave perhaps the outstanding example of selectiveness. They chose Dean Francis W. Kennedy of Heidelberg college as their candidate for mayor over Edward H. Ferrall, lumber man. And to do it, 1,183 voters wrote Kennedy's name on the ballot.

Republicans at Tiffin nominated Robert L. Rohe, former state senator, also by the "writing in" process.

In at least six northern Ohio cities, the incumbent mayors were refused another nomination.

The voting was light in most cities but perhaps the oddest situation was at Wellington where the polls were open all day but not a single vote was cast. There were no candidates. They are nominated at a people's caucus to be held 10 days hence but to comply with the state law, clerks and judges spent the day in the voting places.

Akron perhaps came as near as any city to casting a big vote. Between 20,000 and 25,000 votes were cast in the non-partisan primary there. J. Earl Cox, former municipal judge, ran first and I. S. Myers, former mayor, second. They will oppose a Republican candidate who will be chosen by petition.

Mayor Addison Q. Thacher was nominated at Toledo along with Solon T. Klotz and Walter H. Hartung in an eight-cornered non-partisan race.

MACHADO CONSIDERS MEDIATION PROPOSAL

Holds Place as Cuban Ruler While Efforts To End Strike Continue.

By The Associated Press

HAVANA, Aug. 9 — President Machado considered mediators' proposals today that he leave a political scene of bloodshed, strikes, and passive revolution, while his followers raised a cry of nationalism and independence.

"I am and I continue being president of Cuba in the plentitude of all my constitutional prerogatives," said Machado in reply to a formula presented to him by United States Ambassador Sumner Welles, acting for a commission seeking to settle political differences.

But Mr. Welles said mediation was not ended, even though the president was reported as having told his liberal party leaders that he would not ask congress for a leave of absence, deemed necessary by the mediators for re-establishing peace.

In the face of a chaotic condition induced by a general strike and the resulting food shortage, furthermore, the house of representatives was scheduled to meet at 5 p. m. to consider a resolution by Salvador Garcia Ramos, a liberal, condemning Welles' consultations about peace with government and opposition representatives as prejudicial to Cuban autonomy and

WINS PRIMARY RACE AGAINST 3 OPPONENTS

Bolin Victor in Main Contest of City Primary; Phillians Unopposed.

RECORD SIZE VOTE CAST

Allen Defeats Landes in Auditor Contest; Weber Named by Democrats.

With balloting reported to be the heaviest ever cast in a primary here, Marion voters went to the polls yesterday and nominated C. A. Bolin, Democrat, to oppose W. C. Phillians, Republican incumbent, in the race for mayor at the November election.

Bolin, receiving more than twice as many votes as his nearest opponent, was nominated by the Democratic voters out of a field of four candidates. Phillians was not opposed.

Sharing the spotlight with the Democratic mayorality race was the battle between Tracy R. Allen and J. L. Landes for the Republican nomination as city auditor. Landes tasted defeat for the first time in 14 years when Allen won the nomination in the closest balloting recorded yesterday. Landes was seeking his eighth term. Allen's margin of victory, according to the unofficial tabuations of the election board, was 16 votes, Landes receiving 914 and the victor 930.

Five in Democratic Race

The Democratic contest for auditor also attracted its share of interest with five candidates in the field. Frank J. Weber, however, won with but little trouble.

Although the pre-primary campaign gave no signs of attracting an unusual number of voters to the polls, when the final tabulations were made at the board of elections 5,068 ballots had been cast. It represented about 60 per cent of the average vote cast in general elections.

This, election officials said, was the greatest primary vote ever cast in Marion and exceeds by far any other city primary balloting. Democrats cast 3,189 ballots and Republicans cast 1,889.

Other primary news of Marion and nearby cities appears on Pages 7 and 12.

Previous city primaries were far behind yesterday's voting. In 1931 3,399 votes were cast, in 1927 1,469 and 1,029 votes were cast in 1927.

In spite of the apparent lack of a hot out-in-the-open campaign before the voting started, the interest in the outcome was unusually great. The Star office, where a corps of tabulators was compiling returns, was flooded with telephone calls throughout the night. The lobby of the office was jammed with persons seeking information regarding their candidates.

Another Record Set

Another new record was set at the primary. This one was by the precinct election officials who completed their work at 9:25 p. m. Within a short time the election board had completed its unofficial tabulations. This was the earliest that returns were completed in the memory of the members of the board.

The first precinct to complete its work was G in the Fourth ward, which turned in its figures at 7:30. The last precinct was E in the Sixth ward.

Bolin Has Big Margin

Bolin's victory amounted to a virtual landslide. His total of 1,527 votes came within 237 of being more than polled by his three opponents combined. H. S. Kelleher

MARION BOY SCOUTS PLAN LAKE ERIE TRIP

Four Patrols To Leave Thursday on Three-Day Regional Camparall.

Four patrols of Marion Boy Scouts will leave here early Thursday morning for a three-day regional camparall at Put-in-Bay Lake Erie. At Sandusky they will board the steamer Chippewa to the island returning Saturday evening.

Scout Executive Arthur S Brooke, a member of the regional committee in charge of the camparall, will be in charge of all scout activities and demonstrations.

The four patrols representing Marion won blue ribbons at the Harding area camparall in June. They are the Ravens of Troop 2 with Ralph [illegible] in charge, the Beaver patrol of Troop 2 with Fred Allen in charge and the Buffalo and Raven patrols of Troop 5 with A. D. Boyd and William Willis in charge.

Each patrol will carry its own tents equipment and food, and will be judged on arrival on their packcraft. Besides packcraft they will be scored on campcraft, cookcraft and general appearance. The three days will afford the boys swimming in Lake Erie, trips to the top of Perry's monument, visits to the lighthouse, a trip to the caves and on Friday a boat to Kelly's Island for exploration, scoutcraft demonstrations, contests and campfires.

Police Undecided As To Disposition of Springfield Man.

Faced with a number of possible moves, police said today they were yet undecided as to what action to take in the case of Henry Dingledine, 25, of Springfield, held here since Friday night for investigation.

Officers said that Dingledine is believed implicated in an auto theft in Ft. Wayne, Ind., is liable here to a charge of carrying concealed weapons and also is under indictment in Bellefontaine, O., for a hardware store burglary there a year ago.

Each step of the investigation, police said, has yielded new information which obstructs an early decision of the case. In the last two days Marion police officials have traveled nearly 200 miles in efforts to locate additional evidence.

In the meantime, the automobile in which Dingledine was arrested here has been turned over to Ft. Wayne authorities.

We've Learned

(Will Rogers Special)

BEVERLY HILLS Cal Aug 9—It takes a long time to find out how wrong you are sometimes. In 1898 we was all in beaded perspiration trying to fix things so Cuba would have liberty and all the accompanying benefits.

Now Cuba is having one of the best civil wars that's been produced in years. Got rid of the Spaniards now they can have a real fight.

Around 1917 we also decided that the world ought to have a mess of democracy so we went a long ways from home to fix it up for em. Well you kinder get a rough idea of how we fixed it. So the moral of the whole thing seems to be stay home and build a big army and navy.

They can't come here to lick us. We are not going there to lick them so how you going to have a war?

Yours,

Will Rogers

WITH CIRCUS

RENE LARUE

Animals, pretty girls and clowns are prime essentials with any circus, and if any one judges the merits of the show by these things then Sam B. Dill's three-ring circus will be called the peer of the "White Tops." Mademoiselle Rene LaRue is one of the star performers while a bevy of youthful misses that would be a credit to the Follies appear in the displays. Jimmy Thomas, the singing clown, heads a large bunch of those funny rascals who know the art of extracting laughs and chuckles from both the young and old folks. Thursday Aug 17 will be circus day in Marion on the show grounds located on North Prospect street.

SYLVIA SIDNEY AND GEORGE RAFT STARS OF PALACE PICTURE

Sylvia Sidney who recently was forced to quit work in the middle of a picture because of a throat condition that required an operation and George Raft are co-featured in "Pick Up" the Palace theater offering for Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

GEORGE RAFT

Vina Delmar who authored "Bad Girl" wrote "Pick Up." William Harrigan and Lilian Bond play prominent supporting roles.

Before he went in pictures Raft was a professional dancer and before that played professional baseball. His press agents credit him with teaching H R H the Prince of Wales a few new dance steps while he (Raft) was playing in a London show.

"THE CALIFORNIA TRAIL" AT MARION

Buck Jones plays a dashing daredevil scout in the days when California wasn't even a state in the union in "The California Trail" which will be shown Thursday Friday and Saturday at the Marion. Watch this picture for Buck's new Palomino horse—which means the body is salmon colored and his mane and tail pearl white—recently purchased by the cowboy star. "Pal" won't supplant "Silver" Jones' prized trick horse but the star is using the six year old in this picture just to give him a taste of the picture making that is to come.

HERE'S the new line-up at Goodyear Service, Inc.

Every man in this picture is working shorter hours—at the same pay—new names are added to our payroll—new faces greet you on our service courts—because we're increasing employment to increase buying power.

That's our bit in the great program to bring back good times by prompt coöperation with the blanket code of the National Recovery Administration.

And the tires we sell are built in Goodyear factories—where every man and woman on the payroll is working under the same patriotic code.

It's up to all of us to shoulder our share—and we pledge our full support to the government's great program.

At the same time, we're glad to announce that most Goodyear Tires today are still priced below the level of last fall.

Simplicity Marks Nuptial Ceremony at Kirkpatrick

Simplicity marked the wedding of Miss Alice E. Beers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira E. Beers of Kirkpatrick, and Michael C. Kreider, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kreider of Rockbridge, which took place Sunday afternoon in Liberty M. E. church. The double ring service was read at 2 o'clock by Rev. Harry Allen, pastor, assisted by Rev. Alva Beers, brother of the bride. Only members of the families and a few immediate friends witnessed the ceremony.

The bride's attendant was Miss Pauline DeRoche of New Washington and Ralph Walker of Rockbridge was Mr. Kreider's best man. The wedding music was played by Miss Evelyn Richards of Morral.

The bride attended Ohio university and for three years has been employed as a teacher in the Morral schools. Mr. Kreider is a graduate of Ohio university with the class of 1930 and is an investigator with the Ohio Department of Public Welfare.

Upon their return from a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Kreider will be at home in Xenia.

Wesley M. E. Pastor Reads Wedding Service

The marriage of Miss Olive Marie Fegley and Dalton Francis Williams, both of Delaware was solemnized Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock by Rev. W. Martell George, pastor of Wesley M. E. church. The single ring service was read at the parsonage on Orchard street in the presence of the bride's mother and Mrs. Clarence Bodman of Marion. Mrs. Williams is the daughter of Mrs. William Fegley of Delaware and Mr. Williams is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williams of Delaware.

KEEPS OLD NOTE
By United Press

MEXICO, Mo.—An aged promissory note, dated Sept. 25, 1817, almost 116 years ago, is a keepsake owned by Milliam Dillard of Mexico. The note was for $20.25, payable to Andrew Steel and Compan, a concern doing in business in Virginia. Steel was Dillard's great-grandfather.

Homemaker's Question Box

Question — What precautions must be observed in salad making? What are the characteristics of a good salad?

Answer—The success of the salad depends upon careful preparation, cooking and draining the ingredients upon arranging them attractively; upon using the type of dressing best suited to the salad; and upon serving a salad suitable to the occasion.

To keep crispness and flavor in salad greens: select lettuce, cabbage, endive, spinach, water cress, parsley, beet and turnip greens that are fresh and tender. Wash, drain, place in cloth bag or wrap in towel and put in the ice box until ready to serve.

If necessary to freshen, do not let the vegetable stand in cold water more than 20 minutes. In the case of cabbage and head lettuce the whole head may be placed in cold water for a few minutes.

Do not shred cabbage more than an hour before serving time. Cover with a damp cloth or oil paper and put in a cool place. The shredded cabbage may stand in ice water, if carefully drained before adding salad dressing, or it may be plunged in cold water and placed in a colander to drain. Place the colander where there is a good circulation of air.

of Interest to Every Marion Woman

PRINTZESS COATS ARE NOW EXCLUSIVELY at UHLER-PHILLIPS'

For forty years Printzess coats were carried in Marion by the Warner & Edwards Co., and two generations of women in Marion and the surrounding territory bought their Printzess garments at that fine old store. When they retired from business this year, we felt that Uhler & Phillips should be the new home for Printzess, and happily they agreed with us. And so you hundreds of women who have worn Printzess garments with so much satisfaction will now find them at this store in a complete assortment.

And just a word more—Uhler & Phillips bought their Printzess coats for fall before the advance in prices. You can own a Printzess, with all their style, fit and quality, at surprisingly low prices. But you must select early! Their late purchases cannot be made at such advantageous prices.

We thank the women of Marion and surrounding trade area for their loyalty to Printzess garments in the past, and want to assure you of our appreciation of your continued interest in their new home at Uhler & Phillips.

The Landing

…back to the stern …he cried out in …answer …her anxiously She …leaning forward …shutting off the …impact had flung …seat and her head …some part of the …was stunned surely …that, for there was …wound His com…him that it could …really serious—…seemed sorry …was in an agony of …

…nded on the beach …er up in his arms …ashore Her face …resting on his shoul…were bloodless It …him Unreasoning …surely there was no …fear Her hair …his cheek, some…urging him to hold her closer still. She was no weight in his arms, and yet his arms trembled

His eyes searched around him The beach was strewn with boulders and rocks but beyond perhaps a hundred yards away were trees already beginning to look ghostly through the gray curtain of fog He carried her across the beach found a patch of sward under the trees just at the edge of the wooded land and laid her down

And now she stirred opened her eyes stared at him blankly for a moment and smiled

That's fine he claimed buoyantly You're better But just lie still until I fetch the boat

Then he brought cushions—a tarpaulin—laid upon the ground

Now he demanded how's that little lady?

Perfect she answered It is nice of you and so silly of me

Silly he ejaculated All my fault I should have kept my eyes open

For something you couldn't see?

Oh well he said a little lamely at least—

'Oh well she interrupted That expresses it exactly It couldn't be helped and anyway there's no real harm done I pitched headlong against the engine when we struck as you have already guessed and I shall probably have a headache which won't last She felt gingerly over her head with her hand Also a goose egg—which won't last either

Stout fellow he applauded

The fog was still thickening Colin could scarcely see the boat now at the water's edge Thank God there was no cause for grave concern on her account but what to do now? Suppose the fog lasted on through the afternoon the night —interminably? He might get assistance from the club If one struck across overland it couldn't be very far away

"Look here he proposed "from what you said this club can't be more than a mile or so at most from here by land and I think I'd better cut over there and get some of the chaps to help out You can't stay here all night you know

SHE raised herself up on her elbow

'You will do nothing of the sort she stated with finality

And why not? he asked

'For a host of reasons ' she answered In the first place I'm quite all right or at least I will be in half an hour or so and if it became a question of going to the club I could go with you In the second place in this fog we'd be lost in the woods before we had gone a quarter of a mile And in the third place we are perfectly all right as we are no matter how long the fog lasts We are not even going to be subjected to any hardships There's a thermos bottle and a lunch basket in the boat you know '

It sounded logical Undoubtedly she was right

'Still the skipper, I perceive " he teased

She tossed her head

"You know the penalty for mutiny don't you?'

'All right he grinned and then seriously 'But if we don't get back within a reasonable time your father will be frightfully worried

'No she said calmly "not a bit Father was brought up on the coast He knows exactly what we will have done So long as we get back before he leaves for Gaspe it will be all right—and we're sure to do that for this fog of course, will delay the Belle Fleur too"

'Splendid'' said Colin He spread one edge of the tarpaulin over her as a covering and quite unnecessarily rearranged the cushion under her head In that case" he laughed, I shan't mind from purely selfish reasons, if the fog lasts on a bit '

The fog did last—unduly Darkness came In spite of her insistence that it was 'nothing at all the blow on her head refused to be treated quite so cavalierly, and she had been content to lie where she was drowsing a good part of the time

She was asleep now But now it was a wholly natural sleep The lunch basket and the thermos bottle just as evening had set in had worked wonders

What time was it? Colin sitting on the ground beside her fumbled for his watch and then replaced it in his pocket If he struck a match he might awaken her It must be somewhere around 10 o'clock

A queer smile twisted his lips The last sort of complication he had expected to encounter on this quest of his for one Joseph Lazarre was—Germaine Tremblay Like a story! He knew now that he had written her finally and for all time into his life

HE realized now that from the moment he had met her on the Bonaventure he had subconsciously known this would be so but he had never questioned himself And this afternoon when he had carried her from the boat and she had lain there in his arms white and unconscious suddenly he had known then too that there never would be need for questioning He knew now that everything that the world held for him was vested in Germaine Tremblay

And she? He shook his head If their companionship had come to mean anything more to her than the frank and open friendship which she offered she had shown no sign of it But neither had he for that matter His hands clenched suddenly Over their picnic supper she had asked some natural and innocent questions about his life in Boston—and he had lied glibly

But why go on with that? It had been with him all afternoon and evening What good did it do to tell himself again that the masquerade was not of his making and that he was no criminal? What could he say to a girl about love even if he cared hope that she too might care when he himself was being hunted for his life and could only be a source of danger to her if he were discovered?

He shrugged his shoulders in vicious dismissal of the subject He thought of the boat—and wished he could at least glimpse it But between the fog and the darkness he could not see more than two or three yards in front of him Perhaps he couldn't have seen the boat anyway from where he sat even if there were no fog

He turned his head sharply—listening His ear had caught the sound of movement somewhere in the woods near at hand It came nearer—the crackle of twigs and underbrush An animal of some sort maybe His lips tightened a little

Germaine was still asleep and he did not waken her Why should he—yet? His hand went into his pocket and came out with the revolver for which he had bought a reserve supply of ammunition in Quebec and which had never left his person since the night he had picked it up in Butch Conal's room

And now the sounds died away for an instant—then came near But this time it was the crunching of sand Whatever it was it was moving along the beach now Not far away But he could see nothing

And then suddenly there came what seemed like the thud of a heavy body falling on the sand then a yell of pain followed instantly by a torrent of vile oaths in French

Avis' Swoon at the Close of the Wedding Ceremony Turns Out To Be a Sham Katherine Tells Avis She Knew Avis Was Only Pretending

AS AVIS ARLEN slumped against Harry Underwood in what appeared to be a swoon I thanked my particular little joss that her mother and Philip Veritzen upon the other side of the improvised aisle were looking toward Noel and Mary whose marriage ceremony had only just been concluded and did not see her

A swift glance around told me that all other eyes save mine were also fixed upon the bridal party Putting aside my wish to go up with the rest congratulate Noel and wish Mary happiness according to the time-honored custom which forbids congratulations to a bride I moved swiftly to a spot directly in front of Avis so that I shielded her from any chance glances

'As soon as we get her out of here have Katherine come into the little study Lillian whispered 'If her mother misses her you'll have to let her come too I suppose but I think we'll have her back here before anybody misses her Sidle along in front of us Madge and I think we'll turn the trick Got her Harry? All right heave ho!'

Avis Carried Out

I did not know just how they were going to manage this exit of an apparently unconscious figure but I knew their resourcefulness and I was not surprised to see Avis apparently walking from the room between them I knew that they were holding her upright in an iron grip and that her feet were not touching the floor but the impression given to any casual eye was that of three people walking close together

As soon as they were through the side door into the hall, I shut it after them and making my way to Katherine gave her Lillian's message Then by a separate exit I made way again out of the living room seeing from beneath my lowered eyelids that Mrs Arlen had not yet missed her daughter

In the little study, when I reached it I found Avis stretched out upon the couch where Harry and Lillian had laid her

Shamming'

She was apparently unconscious and Katherine leaning above her with a practiced hand upon her pulse suddenly detached that hand and gently lifting the girl's eyelids looked at the pupils of the eyes beneath them Then she straightened herself and turning her back upon the girl, formed with her lips the one word "Shamming'

The word could not possibly have been heard by Avis and she made no movement, remaining in her deathlike posture while Katherine spoke swiftly aloud

"There is no danger It's a simple faint from which she's likely to come out any minute Will you get me some water, Harry?"

Her voice uttered the request but her eyes significantly negated it and Harry's movement toward the door was slow and deliberate with a palpable waiting for recall

With a little smile playing around her lips Katherine winked deliberately at us then turning back to the couch made a sudden swift almost stealthy movement which I could not see but the evidence of which was promptly manifest as Avis opened her eyes wide and squealed You pinched me

Oh my dear child Katherine's voice fairly dripped honey and maple syrup That wasn't a pinch That was simply a test of your reactions to see whether you were conscious or really in a swoon I am so glad you didn't really faint but just felt like it Of course I realized that you hadn't actually swooned when I looked at your eyeballs just now I could tell by your eyelids although you're a pretty good actress you kept them almost still But I didn't want to judge you without all the tests so I lifted your eyelids and then gave you what you are pleased to call a pinch Now If you feel ill I'll get you anything you wish but don't try to pull any more pretended faints on me I've been nursing too long for that '

The Stars Say

For Thursday, Aug. 10.

A splendid day for employment and currying favor with those in place and power is presaged from the ruling astral influences It is a propitious time for reaching high for the fulfillment of cherished hopes and ambitions, but an element of contention, strife, impetuosity or rash judgment might prove a detrimental force to such happy fruition of well-laid plans and projects. Restraint and an alertness to spiteful or vicious tongues is admonished.

A child born on this day will be steady, industrious and ambitious and should find high favor with superiors, but may provoke enmity by rash and tempestuous words and deeds unless calmly self-controlled.

Common Sense.

Administrator Johnson believes that two more weeks will be sufficient time to get the blanket code for recovery to the point of maximum efficiency. In the meantime, the administrator and other officials of the government will try to line up units which are out of step for one reason or another.

It may be depended on that the government's full power will be employed "to crack down" on recalcitrant individuals and companies who menace the recovery drive with balkiness. In fact, if the drive accomplishes nothing else, it promises to establish a new conception of the relation of business to Washington. General Johnson and other figures in the recovery administration are giving orders, not taking them.

Day by day they are hammering home facts which quickly are qualified in popular judgment as sound common sense. Thus, General Johnson, appealing for increased buying, says that it is a choice of spending money for goods now or for taxes and doles later on. Speaking of stockholders' objections to increasing wages, he points out that unless buying power is restored investors will go on indefinitely in a world of limited dividends.

These are not difficult points to understand. They represent clearly one of the most fortunate aspects of the entire recovery program—its appeal to reason. With the exception of currency and credit inflation, there is nothing in it too complex for the mind of the man who is its potential or actual beneficiary—the man with a job—the man whose income multiplied by millions is national buying power.

This man's conception of buying power is the one which counts most in figuring the probabilities of success for the recovery program. He can be depended on to do his part if he is given a chance, which means an opportunity to earn money. In reality, the appeal to buy and to keep the recovery cycle in motion is made not to the mass of people but to the relatively small group which provides employment. When there is money to spend the people will spend it.

The More Honorable Members.

"The canny French," they are called. The title isn't accidental.

Last week advice from a trade paper published for the French wine industry was republished on this side of the Atlantic. It was contained in an article addressed to cognac distillers.

It pointed out the exorbitant taxes which will be placed on imported alcoholic beverages when the 18th amendment is repealed. From the evidence, this conclusion is drawn: "There still are some days left for the bootleggers and gangsters, who will continue to ignore licenses, taxes and import tariffs. In these circumstances, it would seem that our cognac producers should continue, as they have done in the past, to deal with the more honorable members of a profession condemned by law, but long since glorified in the movies."

From elsewhere comes information that French wine producers have legitimate business in the United States sewed up right in anticipation of repeal. They have engaged American agents under bond to distribute their products. A market is assured for virtually every bottle of wine they care to export for legitimate sale. "The more honorable members of a profession condemned by law" will take other bottles not consigned to legitimate distributors. Frenchmen continue to earn their claim to the title of the world's most realistic business men. If Americans were half as realistic in their thinking, they would know better than to give the bootleggers a break by prohibitive taxes on products for which there is and will continue to be a demand that will make tax evasion profitable.

Water Everywhere.

State Geologist Wilbur Stout has outlined in an interview what he believes will be another increasing function of government in coming years—control of the water supply. It is his opinion that Ohio eventually will have a serious problem with water unless it begins immediately to take a long view of this vital necessity.

To the pioneer, seeking a suitable environment for himself and his family, water was the most important natural resource. In this state's territory, bounded on the north by Lake Erie, criss-crossed with streams and dotted with numerous small lakes in the northern part, he found a plentiful supply. Later, when it became necessary to turn to huge wells for a water supply in some sections, fortune again favored Ohio. More than half the state is ideally constituted, from a geological standpoint, to supply an adequate amount of pure water.

Geologist Stout is looking further ahead, however, than his fellow Ohio residents who never worry about water until the well gets low or the water department asks cooperation in conserving a diminishing supply. He is anticipating the time when an increase in population will create a demand which nature won't be able to supply unless men in this generation have foresight.

His warning that it is time to be thinking of these things is an unpleasant reminder of what has happened to that other supply which nature provided for the United States—oil. It is a reminder, too, of the way men have mishandled natural gas and coal

There were and are farsighted men who asked and who are asking for conservation of these resources. Their pleas, for the most part, have been ignored. Opportunists have wasted oil, wasted gas, wasted coal, and, in other parts of the country, have raided timberlands under the banner of profit. The future did not concern them.

Water, still plentiful, may some day be scarce. It is time to be thinking of the future now. Will men like Geologist Stout be able to get a hearing, or will they shout against indifference as the other prophets of eventual shortage from careless waste have done before them?

Business—A Public Utility.

In the handbook to his administrative policies which President Roosevelt caused to be published just before his inauguration, a public utility is defined simply in terms of an important event which occurred in the time of King James of England. Ferries operating on English rivers represented a monopolistic service. Ferryboat operators, because of their privileged position, had the chance and the right to observe whatever the traffic would bear.

Their greed and avarice became a public issue, until in the days of Chief Justice Hale it was ruled that ferries, because they were vested with a public character "ought to be under a public regulation." That standard has been the common law definition of government's authority over public utilities, President Roosevelt points out.

The national recovery act enacted and being enforced under the President's direction assumes that business has been vested in an industrial society with a public character and "ought to be under a public regulation." This is the essence of the industrial codes which must be submitted by unified branches of business. It is implied in the federal government's power to license manufacturers and business men. It is the natural outgrowth of an experience in which bad management of private enterprise has called for a financial and managerial rescue by government.

It is safe to say that no principle of such magnitude can be laid down and maintained, even in part, without permanent effect on the structure of the society which permits the act. It is, therefore, both shortsighted and naive to believe, as many do, that the national recovery act is an instrument for temporary use, that it will be abandoned as soon as its initial function is complete. The changes it has made and will continue to make necessarily are permanent. A new conception of the relationship between enterprise and government has been founded in the same way that the conception of a public utility was founded when the public's resentment against ferryboat operators became so strong that politicians were forced to soothe it with a safeguard.

Kentucky Votes.

The country is used to bloodshed in Kentucky at voting time, but this year's record of violence sets a new high mark. It is easy to imagine commentators in countries which have felt the sting of American criticism getting out their lashes and going to work on a supposedly civilized country where 14 people are killed and 10 wounded in the business of nominating a handful of people for minor offices.

From an account of what happened, one gets the impression that the real cause of the bloodshed was the meeting of old enemies under the spell of the excitement that prevails when public offices are being handed out. Kentuckians in the mountain counties do not have many occasions to meet together. Singularly narrow in their contacts, they are given to brooding over the sometimes unpleasant results of those contacts.

From bitterness stored patiently for months and years—and hastened by a type of thinking as foreign to lowland people as that of a foreign race—there flashes an outburst of temper when the enemy is sighted. In the Kentucky mountain code, pugnacity and honor are virtually identical. When pugnacity is expressed with a rifle or a shotgun, fatal results are to be expected.

Yet, it must not be forgotten that these people are the unstained descendants of some of the nation's best stock. They are living in the cherished tradition of the good old days. Unfortunately, it isn't possible for them to realize what shame a dozen murders and almost as many attempted murders bring upon their enlightened brethren who live together peaceably, leaving murder to hoodlums, hit-skip drivers and those legally designated as mentally incompetent.

Back To Poona.

True to expectations, the irresistible spirit of Mahatma Gandhi has bounced its human master off the immovable resistance of British rule into the familiar cell in the jail at Poona. British officials gave the mahatma his choice between giving up his preaching tour or going back to prison. There was no question about what would come of such a situation eventually. Neither side could give in without losing face. Imprisonment was the only way out of the deadlock.

The term this time is one year. No one can attempt to say what will have happened by the time the mahatma is permitted to go free again. He may have starved himself to death, he may have been released for reasons which cannot be foreseen, or he may have intimidated the British by another threat of martyrdom like the one which persuaded them to turn him loose before he started his latest fast. Only one thing is certain. Here is no ordinary man and no ordinary government.

India is one of the few countries of any importance where an agitator is less potent in jail than he is wandering among the people. A high percentage of illiteracy makes it impossible for Indians to know what Mahatma Gandhi is doing when he is penned up in Poona. In the United States, by way of contrast, the way to recruit a following for an agitator is to persecute him. Government officials occasionally put a glimmer of light on that fact, but not often.

In all probability, therefore, Mahatma Gandhi in a cell at Poona will be a figure who will not be attracting much attention for at least another year. The British cannot stop the civil disobedience movement, but they have demonstrated on many occasions an almost spectacular capacity for stopping its ablest exponent.

Don't Neglect Abrasions.

There are many afflictions of the skin, but few are as disturbing and alarming as erysipelas. Fortunately in these days this disease is not encountered frequently. It was very common when little was known about infection and antiseptics. In those times, hospitals, especially maternity wards, were the scenes of severe and serious epidemics of erysipelas.

The disease was spoken of as "St. Anthony's Fire" and it was regarded as highly contagious. Today it is not counted as one of the contagious diseases. The old name is seldom used. It is now known as an infectious disease, caused by a germ called the "streptococcus erysipelatis."

The germ enters the body through an abrasion, a wound, any scratch or break of the skin. Trouble is not suspected until the victim notices a marked itching and burning of the injured skin. Then there follows sudden fever, with chill and marked redness of the skin.

The eruption begins about the second day after the infection and may spread all over the body. It is more likely to be localized. In mild cases the eruption disappears about the fourth day and signs of improvement begin within a week. Unfortunately, not all cases of erysipelas are of a mild nature. Complications, such as gangrene and other serious disturbances may develop. By proper care serious complications can be prevented.

Never neglect an abrasion of the skin. No matter how slight the injury appears to you, always apply an antiseptic. If throbbing and redness are present consult with your doctor. Do not forget that simple injuries of the fingers, hands or feet may lead to serious disorders.

Fever, headache and intestinal disturbances are warning signs that the infection has spread beneath the skin. They are due to the absorption of poisons from the infected wound. Careful nursing and medical care are essential if undesirable complications are to be prevented.

As I said, this dreaded disease is less frequently seen today. We are fortunate enough to live in a different age. We have at our disposal adequate measures for combatting infection and disease. In addition, this particular disease can be controlled by the administration of a special preparation called "erysipelas antitoxin."—Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

LEARNING FROM TOYS.

Often the most satisfactory toys are found by chance.

One little girl's favorite plaything was a large box of embroidery comprising nearly every shade and color in the spectrum, and the baby—for she was not yet 18 months old—would sit on the floor for hours draping the skeins about her neck.

She soon learned not to pull the skeins to pieces or snarl them or stick them in her mouth, because any thus treated were quietly confiscated.

In time she learned that there were names to the colors, and would hold up a skein with the laconic inquiry, "What?" The mother replied with equal brevity—red or blue or violet, according to the color.

Later on the child would hold up two shades of the same color, which then became red and light red or green and light green as the case might be, until eventually the distinction between finer shadings such as blue, green or green blue came to be made.

When the novelty threatened to pall after some months, the mother began to make suggestions such as "Put all the reds together or all the blues." That led to shading the various groups in order.

By the time she was 2 years old she had developed a keen sense of color value which will always be of use to her.

Had the game become a lesson it would have been spoiled from the start. To insist on the child's remembering the name of the color even after 10 successive questions and answers would have spoiled the play entirely.

As it was, the information entered the child's brain when she was ready for it, with no strain on the attention.

A Washington Daybook

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

RAYMOND MOLEY

Washington, Aug. 9—The practice of giving trick names to those groups with whom the President associates himself in one capacity or the other continues popular in the capital.

Back in the days when President Hoover was in the habit of arising early and, with several of the ranking members of his administration, tossed a medicine ball around on the White House lawn the "medicine ball cabinet" became one of the most widely known groups in the country.

And later, in his campaign for reelection, three of his most trusted advisers—Walter Brown, postmaster general, Pat Hurley, secretary of war, and Ogden Mills, secretary of the treasury—were invariably dubbed the President's "Three Musketeers."

And so it is with President Roosevelt. He had been in the White House only a short time before his various groups of advisors had been given queer-sounding sobriquets.

The "brain trust" is perhaps the most familiar. Strictly speaking, however, the "brain trust" was named before Roosevelt became President. In Albany, prior to his inauguration, reports drifted down to Washington concerning this group.

There's another group of presidential advisers, however, which has come into being since March 4 and whose name was conceived and bestowed in the capital.

It is the so-called "bedside cabinet."

The "bedside cabinet" is just what its name implies. The President, upon awaking in the morning frequently summons to his bedside some of his most trusted lieutenants for a conference on the most pressing problems confronting the administration at the moment.

The "bedside cabinet" is composed of three men. Professor Moley, generally regarded as the foremost "braintruster" in the administration, is usually present. Young Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, is the second and Louis McHenry Howe, the chief presidential secretary, is the other.

There is little that concerns the administration or the country that these three men do not share.

Highlights of Ohio History

TROUBLES OF A GOVERNOR.

The story given by the late Governor Herrick as to the opposition that came to his reelection to the office of governor from the race horse owners and turf men does not agree with the facts that came from the records of the legislature when the Chisholm bill legalizing betting on races was in progress of legislation. In a biography of Herrick he was quoted as saying he vetoed it on constitutional grounds.

The bill came during a battle between the owners of a race track near Cleveland and the mayor of Bretenahl over the sale of liquor. The track owners attempted to close the saloons at Bretenahl and the mayor retorted with a threat to halt gambling on the races.

It was then the bill legalizing gambling was brought in and Herrick vetoed it. But Herrick did not even hint in his story at the claim of the sponsors of the measure who asserted Herrick had been shown a copy of the law before it was presented and had promised to sign it if passed.

As a result both the preachers and the gamblers were against Herrick when he came up for reelection.

NOT AS A WATCHER.

Not as a watcher, idly looking on
At some vast play, for which the stage is earth
Am I content; my joy can not be drawn
From tasks my fellows do, nor from their mirth.
But I must have my own allotted part,
However weak and few my lines may be,
And I must spend the riches of my heart
Before time steals my hour away from me.

In poignant pain, in toil, in ecstasy
Let me my tides of life pour proudly out,
The gifts I make, let them be full and free,
Unmarred by one reluctance or one doubt;
Not as a watcher, coldly drawn aside,
Who, having feared life, lost it ere he died!

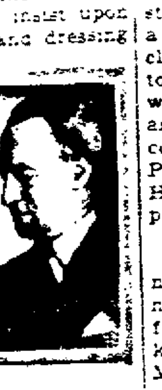
New York Day by Day

BY O. O. McINTYRE.



O. O. McIntyre

New York, Aug. 9—Since the passing of the most expert of gastronomes, Wm. Hogg, I know of but two New Yorkers who insist upon preparing their salad and dressing at the table. They are Bertram Weal, a hotel manager, and George Rector. King Edward at private parties always observed this rite. So does Alfonso.

In Gay 90 days Berry Wall and Diamond Jim Brady used to attract with nothing is such an arouser—the respect of maitres d'hotel and waiter captains by calling authoritatively for a huge bowl, chives, tarragon, olive oil, red pepper and "just a thought of garlic."

There are more than 100 ingredients and seasonings in salad lore. For the practiced eye there's no need of a measurer. It is done with a slap-dash and the master practitioner keeps up a running ping of many-edged conversation with guests while doing his stuff.

It would not seem so, but there's a knack, a finesse in preparing a salad that few attain. One fabulous version by the late Ralph Barton still twinges a hunger. It was a hot potato salad with lettuce, tarragon, fresh ground pepper and a clear soup stock. A heavenly yum-yum!

The Marry-Go-Round

BY HELEN ROWLAND.

PLAY CRICKET!

Nothing makes a man madder than to come home at the end of a hard, hot, high pressure day at the office, and find the house filled with bridge-playing, whoopee-making women.

Of course, no man marries for a home and very few women marry for a support, in these days. There are plenty of nice, comfy hotels and apartments for bachelors, and there are high-salaried jobs for women. So, the only thing to marry for is love—but each expects to get something else along with love. And the average man dreams of a restful, homelike place, where he can go after office hours, slip into a dressing gown, light a cigar or a pipe, stretch out and read a good book, and have his frayed nerves soothed by a gentle presence, and his stomach filled with good home-cooking.

All he yearns for is to lie on the divan or the porch swing and be quiet—and let himself down from the day's high tension.

When he walks in on a bunch of babbling women, who greet him with playful hilarity and try to pour cocktails down his throat, and on a wife who gives him a cold, significant look, which says "Dinner-isn't-ready-yet — and-don't-you-dare-say-a-word-about-it," he begins to wonder why he didn't know when he was well off.

A man is sometimes lucky and wise to marry a "Tired Business Girl," who knows what it is, to come home all fagged out, and [illegible] yearning for food and rest and [illegible] little soothing companionship.

Of course, it is not always the woman's fault, when a man meets these domestic disappointments. When a settled, middle-aged man marries a woman almost [illegible] enough to be his daughter's school chum, he can hardly expect her to fossilize into a "mid-Victorian model wife." It just can't be done. She hasn't had her fling, yet, and, [illegible] these days, a woman expects [illegible] "fling," just as much as a man [illegible]

That masculine illusion that [illegible] man is as young as he feels [illegible] done a great deal to increase the travel to Reno and sometimes makes you wonder if the [illegible] taken from Adam's side was transferred to his head.

There is no sadder sight on earth than that of a nice, dignified, middle-aged man walking back from the altar, with a flossy, glamorous, giddy, young butterfly clinging to his arm. You just know what's coming to him.

If a man is really looking for happiness, he should choose a wife somewhere around his own age. And, if he's a Tired Business Man, his best bet is a girl who has [illegible] down a hard office job, and whose habits, tastes and desires [illegible] therefore the same as his own.

And the woman who marries a man and contracts to make a home and a life for him, should "play cricket"—and not turn the [illegible] into a woman's club, a [illegible] or a night club.

Glimpses of the Past

TEN YEARS AGO.

It was Thursday, Aug. 9, 1923.

The funeral train bearing the body of the late President Harding arrived in Marion from Washington at 12:42 p. m. The body was taken to the home of the late President's father, Dr. G. T. Harding at 498 East Center street, where it was viewed by thousands during the afternoon and night.

Included among notables on the Harding funeral train were Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes, Secretary of War John W. Weeks, Representative Fred H. K. Gillette, speaker of the house of representatives, Attorney General Daugherty, Postmaster General Harry S. New, Secretary of the Navy Edwin Denby, Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, and Senator Cummings, president pro tem of the Senate.

Marion became the press capital of the nation with the arrival here of the train bearing the body of the late President. Scores of newspapermen who had previously arrived were joined by 24 correspondents on the funeral train, men who had been with the late President on the western tour that ended in his death. Friday this large group was to be augmented by 20 to 30 additional writers who were to accompany President Coolidge to Marion to attend the funeral services.

C., D. & M. AND CITIES REACH AGREEMENT

abandonment is authorized and the remainder at 30-day intervals thereafter.

In consideration of the $5,000 payment, the ordinance provides that the receivers be released from all claims, losses or damages which the city ever had or which said city in the future shall or may have by reason of the operation of the interurban lines in and through Marion. The receivers also are released, the ordinance states, from similar damages resulting from abandonment and discontinuance of this service.

A similar agreement was accepted last night by the Bucyrus city council differing only in the respect that Bucyrus will receive $1,000 for its removal of the tracks. Monday night agreements were reached, receivers said, with Prospect and Delaware. Delaware will receive $2,000 and Prospect $750.

With these agreements reached, the receivers said that they will not press an appeal they had made to the Ohio supreme court on a ruling of the utilities commission that the company must make suitable arrangements with cities along the route.

Abandonment of the lines has been in an uncertain stage for 11 months. The receivers this morning said that obtaining the bondholders' signatures had caused most of the delay, holding up the agreements with the cities.

Only one other obstacle remains, the receivers said, and this is expected to be a matter of form. The lines can not be abandoned, they said, until provisions are made for bus service through Prospect on the Marion-Columbus route.

To Use Terminal

The company's terminal on West Center street will continue in use, Mr. O'Connell said, as a warehouse and laboratory for testing meters and similar work. Efforts are being made, however, to have the terminal used as a union bus terminal by the bus operators, he said.

The agreement reached last night followed a long period of negotiations in which city council insisted that the company be at least partially responsible for disposing of the tracks.

Only tentative plans have been made by the city service department on disposition of the rails. It is proposed to take up the tracks on North State, Fairground and Davids streets and relay the brick surface.

To avoid damage to the Center street paving, officials are considering plans to cut the rails to the street level and to resurface the space between the rails. The rails would be cut off with torches.

Resurfacing Project Aided

A project of resurfacing North Main street, which the city has asked the federal government to include in its public works list, will be aided by last night's agreement, officials said. Prospects of obtaining federal funds for the work were hampered, officials explained, by the uncertainty of what was to be done with the tracks.

In the event funds are granted, these tracks probably will be covered over as part of the resurfacing project. The cost of this work, officials said, will not come out of the $5,000 fund accepted last night.

Officials estimated that the cost of material for disposing of the rails will not cost more than $3,000, leaving a balance for supervision and incidentals.

Labor to be used probably will come from the city relief lists, where 100 men a day are available. This would be paid for out of relief funds and would not reduce the $5,000 fund.

Salvage of the rails is expected to bring about $800, officials said, if prices of about $8 a ton can be obtained. About 100 tons of metal will be taken up, officials expect.

CONTESTS DRAW BIG PRIMARY VOTE HERE

made the best showing of the remaining three candidates. He received 697 votes, Paul Knappenberger 576 and Harry W. Haberman 491.

When the first official precinct report reached the election board, it was indicated that the Democratic race might be a neck-and-neck affair. Fourth ward G was the first to report with Bolin and Haberman each receiving 13 votes, Kelleher 10 and Knappenberger 11. But after the first five precincts had been tabulated Bolin increased his lead so rapidly that the remaining candidates had no chance. The first five precincts reported Bolin 126, Knappenberger 122, Kelleher 65 and Haberman 54.

Bolin's lead was nearly doubled by the next five precincts reporting and it continued to increase as the later reports were received.

Carries 29 Precincts

The Democratic nominee received a plurality of the votes cast in 29 of the 42 precincts and shared honors in another. Haberman carried six precincts, Kelleher four and Knappenberger two.

Reports from early precincts gave Allen a comfortable lead in his contest for the Republican auditor nomination over the veteran campaigner, Landes. It was Allen's first quest for nomination to a public office.

The first five precincts gave Allen a majority of 43. When 10 precincts had reported his lead jumped to 56. Then Landes began to show his strength, cutting Allen's majority to eight with 15 sections of the city reporting. The next 10 precincts to be tabulated gave Allen a lead of 21. Then Landes forged into the lead. Five precincts from the First, Third and Fourth wards gave the present city auditor a lead of 13 votes, which he held until after 35 precincts had been tabulated. Fifth Ward E, the thirty-sixth voting place to report, gave Allen a margin that placed him out in front. From that point on the nominee never was overtaken.

Weber Leads from Start

From the time the first precinct was tabulated there was never any doubt as to the outcome of the five-way contest for the Democratic nomination for city auditor. Weber led from the start, polling a total of 1,040 votes. J. Aultman Raub received 681, Clarence W. Dutton 632, Edward F. Tittlebaugh 499 and Carl L. Rieger 261.

Rieger failed to carry a single precinct. Weber was victorious in 22 while Raub and Dutton carried nine and eight precincts, respectively. Tittlebaugh carried only one precinct.

Both the Democratic and Republican contests for the nominations as city solicitor were one sided. Theodore B. Ochs defeated Z. P. Davis on the Democratic ticket 2,015 to 973 and Harry L. Dowler was nominated on the Republican ballot over C. A. Arter 531.

Davis carried two of the precincts while Arter received a majority of votes on one and broke even in two others.

Ochs was given the greatest plurality of any of the candidates. His margin over Davis was 1,042. Dowler polled nearly three times as many votes as Arter but his margin was but 791, owing to the light Republican vote as compared with that of the other party.

Contest for Treasurer

Outside of the ward council posts, only two other contests appeared on the tickets. Both were Republican. Wallace W. Thompson had a majority of 63 votes over Martin Verburg and Rhu K. Austin in the contest for treasurer. Thompson polled a total of 919 votes, Verburg 856 and Austin 383.

Four Republicans sought the three nominations for councilmen at large. Sherman W. [illegible] led the field with 1,[illegible] [illegible] Earle R. Wilson was given 1,191 and William A. Shuster 951. A. C. Vogt was the candidate defeated. The three winners will oppose H. T. Bell, F. R. McDaniel and Miss Barbara Bingham, the Democratic nominees, who were unopposed at the primary, at the general city election in November. Three are to be elected.

Although there was no contest, Bell received 1,948 votes to lead the Democratic nominees for councilman at large. McDaniel was second with 1,935 votes while the only woman whose name appeared on either ticket, Miss Bingham, finished last with 1,527 votes.

Four Ward Contests

Four contests were before voters among the candidates for council from the six wards. Three were on the Democratic ticket.

In the Republican contest W. C. Selanders defeated George H. Bechtel in the Fourth ward by only eight votes. Selanders polled 181 votes and Bechtel 173. Other Republican council candidates and the votes they received are: First ward, Henry O'Dowd, 251; Second ward, Wilfred Townsend 123; Third ward, Hayes L. Rogers 136; Fifth ward, Frank L. Stanley 299, and Sixth ward, Robert H. Stief 456.

J. E. Sexten defeated Irven Prettyman 354 to 265 for the Democratic councilman from the First ward. Three candidates sought the nomination from the Third ward with H. L. Brobeck finishing first with 261 votes. He was opposed by D. J. Finley and George H. Keeler, who received 196 and 97 votes, respectively. In the Fourth ward contest, G. R. Henney won over J. C. Boner 238 to 205. Unopposed candidates and votes polled follow: Second ward, William M. Fabian 487; Fifth ward, Elmer Flach, and Sixth ward, Frank M. Foster, 441.

Phillians' Vote 1,590

Two of the candidates running on the citywide Republican ticket were unopposed. Mayor Phillians, who is seeking his second term received a complimentary vote of 1,590. W. G. Slack, running for president of council, received 1,570 votes, only 20 less than the head of the ticket.

W. Kenneth Tobin, who was unopposed for the Democratic nomination for city treasurer, received the greatest number of votes given a single candidate. He polled 2,566 votes, while T. J. Frericks, running unopposed for president of council on the same ticket, received 2,521 votes.

TRAINRIDER PINNED IN CAR BY PIPE

Transient in Hospital from Injuries Suffered in Yards.

Pinned against the end of a flat car of steel pipe for more than 30 minutes before he was discovered, a transient suffered possible serious injury to his back yesterday at 2:30 p. m. at the hump in the Erie railroad yards.

The man, George King, 28, of Milwaukee, Wis., was too badly hurt for an X-ray examination yesterday, City hospital attaches said, and his condition this morning was only fair. His face and head were badly bruised, and his left ear was pierced.

King stayed on the car while it was sent over the hump and when it bumped the car at the end of the downgrade, the pipe slid forward, catching him and pinning him in such a way that it was impossible for him to move. Section men heard him groaning and rescued him about a half hour later. He was taken to the City hospital in the W. C. Boyd ambulance.

that some organizations will keep track of violators. Foremost in this group are the American Federation of Labor and the newly created Consumers' Protective bureau, the latter linked to the NRA by membership of Mrs. Hugh S. Johnson who is on both the NRA advisory board and the Consumers bureau.

The American Federation of Labor, at the direction of its president, will clear the names of violators through its state and city organizations. The Consumers bureau will deal more directly with them—it will, after all other efforts have failed, make their names available for publication, together with a summary of the infraction.

JOHNSON APPROVES OIL TRADE SCALE

Temporary Agreement Made Pending Decision on Permanent Code

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9—Temporary effectiveness for a scale of wages and hours for the oil industry pending settlement of the controversial code now under consideration was approved today by Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chief.

Under the temporary agreement which has been approved by the industry, producers, refiners and dealers will be permitted to sign a modified presidential agreement and receive the blue eagle.

The temporary code provides a 40-hour maximum week for marketing operations, and a 36-hour week for all other branches of the industry.

"For employes in filling stations and garages selling gasoline and oil direct to the motorist the agreement proposed a 40-hour week with a pay scale graduated from $12 per week to $15 according to the population of the city."

NRA MAKES RULING ON RESTAURANT CODE

their employes in complying with the NRA code but were told it isn't a reasonable charge nobody is going to get away with it.

Miss Mary E. Woods, secretary of the Ohio [illegible] office here, gave out the information after receiving a ruling from Washington. The Cleveland restaurant association had asked if an eating house that paid the $15 a week minimum wage specified in the code could make a charge against that sum for meals eaten by its employes.

"You will have to decide yourselves what a reasonable charge would be," Miss Woods said.

Approximately 150 of the 2,000 restaurant operators in Cleveland voted unanimously at a meeting of the association to abide by the code for that industry which was before officials of the NRA in Washington for consideration today.

Miss Anna Kohn, secretary of the association, asserted there will be no unreasonable charges for food for waitresses whose pay is increased to the minimum under the code. "We hope it will be only a few hours until we are able to conform," she said.

Miss Woods also announced a meeting at Columbus today of the Ohio State association of dry cleaners to [illegible] a code and gave the new total of Ohio employers who have signed the reemployment agreement with President Roosevelt at 74,467. She said 497,466 workers were affected.

The Ohio recovery board, named by President Roosevelt to carry out the provisions of the national industrial recovery act in Ohio, held its initial meeting in Columbus and named Col. C. O. Sherrill of Cincinnati as chairman and Chester A. Dyer, of the Ohio Farm Bureau federation as secretary.

It urged officers of labor, manufacturing, trade, civic and social service organizations to apply for membership in the state recovery council which it soon will name.

Meanwhile, at Cleveland a group of substitute letter carriers protested to NRA headquarters what they termed summary discharge of 220 of their number by postoffice officials.

Three instances of business recovery were noted.

The United States bureau of mines at Toledo reported July shipments of coal through the harbor reached 2,191,000 tons, the largest total for July since the 1929 figure of 2,258,000 tons. The 1932 total was 1,258,000 tons.

Howard Whipple Green, chairman of the statistical sub-committee of the mayor's business recovery committee at Cleveland, reported approximately 52,000 men and women had been returned to work there since March, cutting the total number of jobless to about 146,000.

Miss Cora Floyd, social service secretary, reported the number of persons receiving aid from relief agencies at Steubenville had dropped from 8,327 persons in April to approximately 6,000 at present. She said 770 persons were taken from the relief rolls in July.

PETITIONS FOR VOTE ON TAX LIMIT FILED

Submission of Proposal To Ohio Citizens in November Virtually Assured.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 9—Only the formality of checking petitions remained today to assure a popular vote on a proposed constitutional tax limitation of 10 mills to the dollar on Ohio real estate.

The petitions, bearing 282,000 signatures and asking that the proposal be placed on the November ballot, were filed with the secretary of state last night.

Circulation of the petitions was started by the Ohio Taxpayers Protective league, after the legislature failed to pass bills to effect the new tax plan. Under present laws, the limitation is 15 mills.

The first batch of petitions, signed by 267,000 persons, was carried to the capitol by P. A. Howell of Sidney and other representatives of the league. Secretary of State Myers kept his office open until midnight to receive others brought from Cincinnati by airplane.

In all, the petitions contained about 18,000 more names than required by statute.

PAR TAKES BEATING AS PROS QUALIFY IN MILWAUKEE MEET

Olin Dutra Opposes Reggie Myles of Ashland in First Round.

By The Associated Press

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 9 — Thirty-one survivors of the closest qualifying test in the tournament's 16 years of battling squared away with Olin Dutra in the grueling hand to hand struggle for the national professional golf championship today at Blue Mound.

Grouped in the surviving field, which assaulted par so furiously yesterday that a pair of 73s were necessary to escape elimination in the 36-hole qualifying test, were many of the golfing world's sharpest shotmakers, among them Gene Sarazen and five other members of America's Ryder cup squad.

Heading the bracket, deadlocked in the fight for the championship medal with par-breaking totals of 138, were Mortie Dutra of Detroit, older brother of the champion, and Jimmy Hines, 29-year-old professional with a magic niblick from Long Island, New York. They were matched today in the first engagement of the 36-hole match play battle.

Several interesting clashes were in prospect today with Olin Dutra facing Reggie Myles of Ashland, O., and Sarazen pitted against Vincent Eldred of Pittsburgh. Another probable first round classic put Tom Creavy of Albany, N. Y., 1931 champion, against young Dick Metz, assistant to Craig Wood at Deal, N. J.

Other renowned figures of money golf like Johnny Farrell, Leo Diegel, Johnny Revolta, Ed Dudley, Harry "Lighthorse" Cooper, Johnny Golden, Bobby Cruickshank, Paul Runyan, and Horton Smith, were still in the show and opposed by dangerous rivals.

Despite the unusually low scoring yesterday only a few of the better known players were missing today, among them Billie Burke, Ralph Guldahl, the two Turnesa brothers, Mike and Joe, and Eddie Schultz of Troy, N. Y.

Bishops End Season by Blanking Epworth, 5-0

Calvary Shuts Out Lee Street, 2-0; Christians Finish in Cellar, Losing To Trinity, 12-6.

The First Presbyterians ran into another stumbling block yesterday in the race toward the No. 1 Sunday school league championship. The St. Mary Irish, battling for a share in the championship, grabbed a 2-1 decision and stayed one game behind the fleeting Presbies. Both teams have one postponed game. Should the Presbyterians win, they will have undisputed possession of the pennant regardless of how the Irish get along in their final start. Should the Presbies lose, however, and the Irish triumph, the two would be tied for the crown and a play-off would be necessary.

Three other games were played yesterday, none of them affecting the titular struggle. The Epworth Bishops and John Clark's Epworth No. 1 team staged a strictly intra-church fracas, the Bishops capturing a 5-0 victory to cinch third place in the final standings. Calvary finished up its campaign by slapping a 2-0 beating on Lee Street and Trinity Baptist shoved the Christian Seniors deeper into the cellar by taking a 12-6 victory. The Christians finish the season in last place, which will result in their dropping back to the No. 2 league again next year.

Gunder Beats Vestal

Gene Gunder and Freddie Vestal opposed each other on the hill as the Presbies and Irish staged their battle, Gunder coming out on top through a combination of his own steady pitching and better support than was given Vestal. Both pitchers were nicked for five hits. Vestal struck out seven Irish batters but walked four to two for Gunder and one of Vestal's passes resulted in a St. Mary score. Gunder struck out but two Presbie batters but had most of them hitting easy chances. Gallant and Price connected for the only extra base hits, both doubles. Price's double in the third drove in the only Presbie run.

St. Mary scored its first run through the aid of a walk, an infield out, an error and a hit in the fourth inning. Two hits and an error sent another tally across in the fifth and paved the way for the Irish triumph.

Don Miley was in form as Calvary took a 2-0 game from Lee Street, giving up but three hits while holding the losers scoreless. The three safe blows were scattered over three innings. Lee Street got only one man as far as third base and one other as far as second.

Calvary marked up one run in the first inning on two hits and an error. A triple and a single in the final frame sent another run across and put the game on ice for the uptown church combine.

Bishops Triumph

With Clarence Primmer twirling a nice game, the Bishops had little difficulty in subduing their classmates, John Clark's Epworth No. 1 team, racking up a 5-0 victory. Primmer allowed only three hits and was never in much difficulty. He put two men on in the fifth inning without anyone out but bore down and checked the uprising without allowing a man to reach third. The Bishops didn't do much in the way of batting, collecting only four hits but they bunched them in effective style.

HAUSER HITS HARD BUT CAN'T CONNECT FOR 54TH HOME RUN

Millers Beat Louisville, 11-6; Columbus Downs Kansas City, 4-2.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 9—Joe Hauser today was wondering what had become of his home run punch. Last Saturday he hit his fifty-third circuit blow, just one short of the American Association record, but since then, swing as he might, the fifty-fourth has eluded him.

Against Louisville he has had indifferent luck in getting on base, but two of his hits were line doubles against the fences, indicating he needs to raise his sights a trifle. The Millers, however, did not need home runs, to defeat the Colonels, 11 to 6. They thumped Johnny Marcum, Louisville's prize hurler, and Archie McKain for 16 hits, bunched to advantage.

Columbus, with good pitching by Jim Winford, made it three out of four in the series with Kansas City, 4 to 2. Winford gave only seven hits, while Bill Shores was nicked for 12.

St. Paul got only seven scattered singles as Indianapolis scored a 7 to 0 shutout in a night game.

Earl Caldwell did some nice pitching and Milwaukee defeated Toledo, 3 to 2, in a 10-inning night game.

SERVIS MEDALIST IN OHIO AMATEUR MEET

Dayton Youngster Cards Brilliant 144 Over Course at Cincinnati.

By The Associated Press

Bobby Servis, the 18-year-old Dayton youngster who holds the Ohio State amateur crown, will lead the Buckeye state's 23 qualifiers into the national amateur golf championship at Kenwood Country club at Cincinnati, next month.

The lad who just got his high school diploma wrote his ticket in 144 strokes as he paced 16 players who qualified over the Camargo course at Cincinnati yesterday. His cards of 71-73—144 totaled seven strokes less than that of Oliver Transue of Canton, the Yale university golf captain who led seven players and the preliminary test at Kirtland Country club at Willoughby.

Servis was a single stroke ahead of the second place finisher at Camargo, Nelson Ruddy of Cincinnati. Ruddy matched Servis' 71 for the morning round but added a stroke in the afternoon with a 74.

Four others who qualified at Camargo also bettered Transue's total. Robert Kepler of Dayton came in with 71-76—147, John Fischer of Cincinnati with 74-74—148, Sph Collins of Cincinnati with 75-75—150, and Eddie Hamant of Dayton with 76-74—150.

"SPITBALL" NOW ALMOST A "LOST ART"

Only Two Major League Pitchers Throwing It

FABER AND GRIMES—THE LAST OF 'EM

The spitball is rapidly becoming as extinct as the dodo bird. Only two major league hurlers using it are left. They are Urban "Red" Faber (left) of the White Sox and Burleigh Grimes (right) who recently rejoined the St. Louis Cardinals. The "spitball" was ruled against by the majors in 1920, but 18 pitchers then throwing it were allowed to continue. No new "spitters" are allowed to come, in, however.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO—Except when Urban Faber and Burleigh Grimes unfold their aging arms as relief pitchers "spit ball" pitching is only a chapter in major league baseball history.

Gone is the big army of pitching stars, who bewildered the willow wielders in the days of the hitless wonders. Only Faber and Grimes, at the sunset of their illustrious careers, remain as reminders of the good old days of the "talcum," "wax," [illegible] "licorice," and "emery" balls.

"Doped" Baseballs

Nothing stirred baseball in its long, bright and stormy history more than the "spitball" and its contemporary tricks with the old horsehide. As the pitchers "doped" the sphere and Allan Russell of the Boston Red Sox fired his unforgettable "emery ball," a great chapter was written in America's national game.

Mighty Caseys, helpless and crestfallen, drowned their sorrows in the old corner saloon until one day, in 1920, the major leagues legislated the trick pitching from baseball.

In ruling out the trick pitches the major leagues banned the "emery," "licorice," "wax" and "talcum" balls immediately but permitted the clubs to retain two "spitters" each. Those thus named could use the "spitball" during the rest of their baseball careers.

All others, including rookies coming up from the minors, were barred from using it in the plan to wed out the trick pitching.

Only Two Left

So, one by one, the 18 officially designated "spitball" pitchers 10 in the American and eight in the National league—have passed from the game, except Grimes and Faber. Jack Picus Quinn is still angling to get back to the majors but with small prospects after his release this summer by the Cincinnati Reds.

Here is the official list of the "spitball" pitchers handed out in 1920:

American League—Allan Russell, Boston; Urban Faber and Eddie Cicotte, Chicago; Stanley Coveleskie and Ray Caldwell, Cleveland; Jack Quinn, New York; Urban Shocker and Allan Sothoron, St. Louis; Yancey "Doc" Ayres and "Dutch" Leonard, Detroit.

National League—Bill Doak, St. Louis; Phil Douglas, New York; Fillingim and Dick Dudolph, Boston; Ray Fisher and Clarence Mitchell, Cincinnati; Burleigh Grimes, Pittsburgh, and Marvin Goodwin, Et. Louis.

Spitters Scattered

All those names bring back memories. The men now are scattered; some are dead. Sotheron still belongs to the game, assisting Rogers Hornsby in directing the St. Louis Browns.

George Hildebrand, umpire in the American League, still claims credit as the originator of the "spitball" and chuckles as he relates how he discovered the tricks he could do with the ball while an outfielder in the Pacific Coast league and how he taught it to a teammate, Elmer Stricklett. Stricklett taught a young rookie, one Ed Walsh, how to throw the trick pitch and Walsh became one of the game's pitching immortals. Jack Chesboro picked it up and won 41 games with it in 1904.

When Faber and Grimes pass from baseball's big show, the famous "spitball" goes with them.

WHITEHILL SILENCES YANK GUNS AS NATS AGAIN BOOST LEAD

Washington Now In Front By Two Games After 5-1 Victory.

By The Associated Press

Just when it appeared the New York Yankees in general and Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig in particular had swung back into their devastating ways, along came Earl Whitehill, leader of Joe Cronin's mound staff at Washington. As the result, the Senators today held a two-game advantage over the champions with one game to be played in the current warfare at the stadium.

Unlike the team that rose in its might to sweep a doubleheader Monday, the Yankees yesterday were meek as lambs before the southpaw shoots of Whitehill as the Senators won 5 to 1.

The Senators connected with only seven hits but two of the blows were home runs by Buddy Myer and Heinie Manush and three were successive singles by Goose Goslin, Manush and Manager Joe Cronin.

The Washington-New York fray again overshadowed the remainder of the major leagues' abbreviated program that included the Athletics' 7 to 6 decision over the Red Sox in the American league and the Dodgers' 1 to 0 victory in 11 innings over the Giants and the Cubs' 4 to 2 triumph over the Cardinals and Dizzy Dean in the senior circuit.

Robert Moses Grove, appearing for the first time since breaking the Yankees' shutout streak, won his seventeenth game of the season as the A's turned back the Red Sox but he needed the help of three home runs, one of them Jimmie Foxx's thirty-second of the season.

The Dodgers and Giants put on a pitching duel between Ray Benge and Hal Schumacher, and Brooklyn emerged with the winning run in the eleventh.

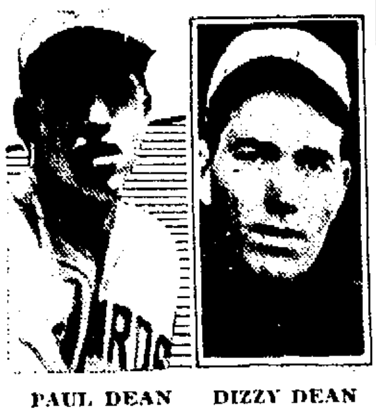
The Cubs, who last week helped Dean established a new strikeout record, avenged themselves by defeating the Cards in the opening game of the series. Although suffering from wrist injury, received at Pittsburgh last week, Dean fanned five batsmen.

Dean Brothers Waging Classy Strikeout "War"

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 9—The Dean boys, Dizzy of the St. Louis Cardinals, and his younger brother, Paul of the Columbus club of the American Association, a Cardinal junior varsity outfit, are waging a strikeout contest by remote control.

Each is the leader of his league. Dizzy, helped immensely by cutting down 17 Cubs last week, and five more yesterday, today had 152 to head the National league. Paul, who like Dizzy, has been in 35 games, had fanned 164 in his circuit.



PAUL DEAN DIZZY DEAN

It is likely that they will be teammates next season, at least during spring training, for Paul, one of the leading hurlers of the American Association, is due for a trial with the main branch of the Cardinal organization.

Special to The Star

KENTON, Aug. 9 — Possibility that Kenton High school will play its cancelled football games was voiced today by E. M. Seitz of Lima, who will serve as grid coach if several benefit games now planned materialize. The opening game on the schedule is with Richwood High school Sept. 15, more than two weeks before high school classes convene here.

COMPANY D TAKES SOFTBALL GAME, 7-5

The Babcock A. C. softball team was beaten yesterday by Company D, 7-5. Anderson was the winning pitcher. Babcock twirled for the losers.

The score by innings:

M. on August 12, 1933, the following described buildings, equipment and real estate formerly owned by the J. J. Curl Company, Inc., bankrupt:

Mill building and equipment designated as east mill building situated on lands leased from the C., C., C. & St. L. Railway Company at Cardington, Ohio, building appraised at $[illegible] machinery and equipment appraised at $1,105.75.

Also, Mill building designated as [illegible] mill building situated on lands leased from the C., C., C. & St. L. Railway Company at Cardington, Ohio, appraised at $500.00.

Also the following real estate: Situate in the County of Morrow, in the State of Ohio, and in the Village of Cardington and bounded and described as follows: The Mills brothers Warehouse (formerly known as the A. Mayer Warehouse property) and bounded as follows: Commencing at the northwest corner of the C. C. C. & St. L. Railway depot grounds on Main Street of said Village; thence west with south line of Main Street, five (5) poles and [illegible] links to a stone and post fourteen (14) feet west of the warehouse; thence southerly and [illegible] with said warehouse to a stone and post fourteen (14) feet from the southwest corner of said warehouse, five (5) poles and 15½ links to a stone and post in the north line of Second Street; thence east fourteen (14) feet to the line of said Railroad Company's line, thence along said line to the place of beginning.

Together with the mill building located thereon, all being appraised at $[illegible].

The above described property being all of the buildings, personal property and real estate owned by the J. J. Curl Co., Inc., at Cardington, Ohio, and being located on the south side of Main street and immediately west of and adjacent to the right of way of the C., C., C. & St. L. Railway Company in said Village of Cardington, Ohio.

Said premises will be sold for cash to the highest bidder, subject to the confirmation of the United States District Court.

WHEAT PRICES CLOSE HIGHER

Augmented Buying Power Helps General Upturn in Late Sales.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 9—Augmented buying power evident in the grain markets today found selling pressure relatively light, and toward the last wheat showed about 3 cents advance.

Trade sentiment more friendly to the buying side of grains was due in part to firmness of securities, but also to belief that the government crop report tomorrow might show a reduction of indicated yields both of corn and oats, as well as spring wheat. There was less comment as to spring wheat, however, in today's gossip than regarding the feed situation, embracing corn, oats, barley and hay.

Wheat closed unsettled 2@2½ cents above yesterday's finish. Corn ¾@1¼ up, oats ⅝@1⅛ advanced and provisions unchanged to a rise of 32 cents.

RACE HORSE SOLD BY UNION CO. MAN

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, Aug. 9—Attorney Milo L. Myers of Marysville today sold his trotting horse, General X., to James Peason of Lancaster. The horse, credited with being one of the best ever raised in Union county, was raised by Attorney Myers and has been raced at most of the fairs throughout the state. He is eight years old and has a record of 2:06½. He will start Thursday in the 2:18 race Thursday at the Richwood fair.

FALSE ALARM CALLS FIRE DEPARTMENT

A false firm alarm yesterday at 3 p. m. was blamed by Chief T. J. McFarland on the activities of a small boy who also is believed responsible for a false alarm several days ago.

The alarm came in from box No. 138, at Davids and Buckeye streets. Neighbors told firemen they saw a boy ride away on a bicycle from the vicinity of the box just before the fire department's approach was heard. No 2 company made the run.

LIGHT VOTE CAST AT MARYSVILLE POLLS

Democratic Mayor Race Is Closest, Victory Going to John McAuliffe.

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, Aug. 9—John McAuliffe candidate for mayor on the Democratic ticket defeated his opponent, George Emmert, by nine votes in the closest race of the primary election here yesterday. Clyde Robinson, candidate for mayor on the Republican ticket defeated Harold J. Coleman by 80 votes.

Only about one-fifth of the voting population turned out with the result that yesterday's primary will cost Union county taxpayers about two dollars a vote. The total vote cast by both parties was 657.

Candidates nominated on the Democratic ticket are Herman Dellinger, clerk, Harry Stephens, treasurer, John H. Schwartzkopf, marshal, Robert Henderson, E. J. Morris, Milton Rausch, French Snider, Walter Osmun and A. F. Braun, councilmen, Fred F. Moore, Charles Asman and Frank R. Devine, trustees of public affairs.

Frank M. Gilcrest was nominated for the office of clerk by the Republican voters, D. R. Griffith, treasurer, George Singer, marshal, Clarence Laird, V. O. Scheiderer, Andrew Taylor, William Vollman, L. J. Barker and Charles Gessler, councilmen and August Vollrath and Dwight Scott, trustees of public affairs.

QUESTIONABLE CHECK ACTIVITIES REVEALED

Bank Returns Check in Payment for Star Marked Incorrect Signature.

A series of questionable check payments for newspaper subscriptions in Marion and other Ohio cities was disclosed today when a check cashed at The Marion Star on July 25 was returned here from Mansfield marked "incorrect signature"

Investigation disclosed that checks signed by the same person, signed with the name of R. A. Gannon and drawn on the Mansfield Printing Co. had been cashed at several other Ohio newspaper offices, including the Advocate at Newark.

At Lexington, O, where the man ordered The Star sent, the postmaster reported that several other newspapers were arriving there for the same person and that they had not been called for.

The check cashed at The Star was for $18.90. The man was given change for the difference between that amount and the cost of the subscription.

Investigation of the check incident brought about a disclosure of two checks forged in Pennsylvania and Springfield, O, on the Marion County bank and the Fahey Banking. These are not related, however, to the subscription order.

The voucher on the Marion County bank, cashed in Pennsylvania, was supposedly made out by the Marion township trustees for more than $30 The one on the Fahey Banking Co. had been forged with the signature of the Marion County Red Cross chapter and the name of Miss Carr. It was cashed in Springfield

KENTON HOST TO YOUNG PEOPLE

100 Delegates from Ohio Cities in Attendance.

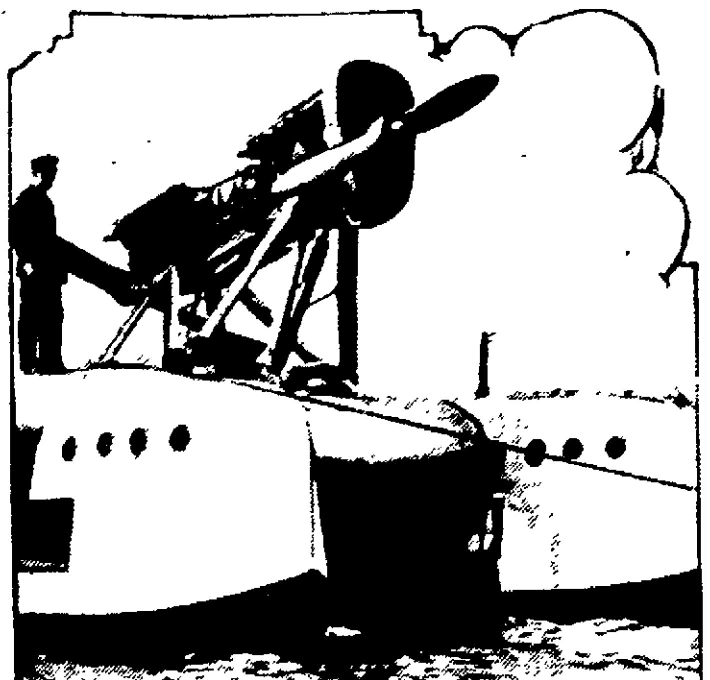
Special to The Star

KENTON, Aug. 9 — The annual convention of young people of the Ohio Northwestern Presbytery got under way Wednesday in Kenton United Presbyterian church with more than 100 out-of-town delegates in attendance from Toledo, Findlay Bellefontaine, Piqua, and other cities. Theme of the convention is "The Changeless Christ for This Changing World."

Registration began this morning and the program was to open at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Rev. J. Harvey McCann of Scotch Ridge delivered the keynote address, followed by the business session and a recreational hour. Dinner was followed by a public service with Rev. G. L. Zurghard of Tiffin delivering the message.

Thursday morning will be devoted to Bible study and conference periods; a song service will be held in the afternoon; the Young People's Christian Union will hold its banquet in the evening, followed by a public service by Rev. Henry W. Eddy of Akron.

RUM RUNNERS GO AIR-MINDED



Because they thought this big seaplane was one of General Italo Balbo's flotilla in distress, coast guards investigated it in Peconic bay. They found that the craft, registered in the name of a Brooklyn, N. Y., resident, was a rum-runner. It has two 500-horsepower motors and capacity for eight passengers. It is shown at the coast guard base, New London, Conn.
